Dear Dr. Ken Lazarus,

I am writing in response to your LinkedIn job listing in which you expressed interest in a Software Developer to join the Scout Exchange team.

I have three years experience in writing both client and server-sided applications. I am a proficient Python programmer, although Java is my primary language of choice. As a software developer for Outsmart Power Systems, I have demonstrated my abilities with the full Java enterprise web stack for creating professional business applications. Additionally, I am experienced with Linux-based operating systems and am no stranger to coding in a team using version control such as github.

In my current job I am responsible for transitioning software from slow, unmaintainable PHP and Java requests into full enterprise applications. This has given me experience in all areas of application development such as web front end work using Javascript, jQuery and AngularJS, writing database schemas in MySQL, connecting applications using JMS, deploying said applications to their respective servers remotely, and of course, writing the actual application logic. I am expected to graduate with a Bachelors of Science in Computer Science this May from the University of Massachusetts Lowell. Included on my LinkedIn profile is a copy of my resume for your review.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely yours,

Michael Meding
